New York, New York - Megan Fox Kelly Art Advisory (MFKAA) marks a quarter century of the art advisory practice she launched in New York in 1999. Her full-service practice provides strategic support for collectors, attorneys, financial advisors, estates and foundations.

Megan founded her art advisory practice with the intention and commitment of providing clients thoughtful and informed advice, expertise on building collections of lasting value, and museum-quality services for the care of their art collections. Over the years, MFKAA has expanded to include sales and strategic planning for collectors and foundations, preserving artists' legacies through collection and estate planning, and advising on artwork appraisals. MFKAA has advised and appraised numerous significant collections throughout the United States and abroad, including the collections of Michael Crichton, the Robert B. and Beatrice C. Mayer Family, The Terra Foundation of American Art, The Robert Rauschenberg Foundation, The Joan Mitchell Foundation, The Thomas Hart Benton Trust, and the Star of Hope Foundation (Robert Indiana), amounting to over $4 billion in fine art assets and completing art appraisals totaling over $6 billion.

In 2021, Megan launched her interview podcast series, Reading the Art World, which presents interviews between Megan Fox Kelly and authors of recently released or upcoming art-centric books.
